

From the Editor of Prosit

2022 was a very good year for Prosit. We were able to maintain all issues at our target size of 40 pages. The feedback we have been getting is that the content of Prosit continues to be very good.

The biggest problem facing the magazine remains unchanged. While we have very strong contributions, we are still largely going issue-to-issue. This obviously is continuing to flirt with disaster. I will again call out the senior members of SCI (Master Steinologists, all Executive Committee members, all on the Board of Directors, and all Chapter Presidents) and ask “where are the contributions” you promise. As I said before, if we had one article from each of you, we would be in great shape for many, many, issues.

Subscriptions for Prosit, based on the most recent issue, are 392 printed, 126 eProsit, 533 total. Of these, 373 of the printed magazines were USA and 19 were non-USA. 19 printed and 11 eProsit were for overseas. We have continued to print very few extra copies. The use of eProsit continues to be an economic advantage to SCI. Further, the cost of printing has remained relatively unchanged.

Our current Printing Company continues to be excellent to work with regarding cost, quality, and helping us not miss a deadline during the recent trying times.

Two final points. First, last year’s Jack Lowenstein Editor’s Award Winner was Ron Gray. And second, Prosit ideally needs 2-4 people to help with the magazine. This becomes more critical as over the next six months Walt begins transitioning away from his involvement with Prosit.
